

ROUNDABOUT IN GEORGIA.

A good many editors having indulged in the old capital buildings in Milledgeville as "the walls their fathers built," a correspondent writes to say that the aforesaid walls were erected by convict labor. Isn't this carrying a joke too far?

Our expert cartoonist seems to have had the bile of Colonel Denham or the Columbus Enquirer. A very pointed is mighty good in this kind of weather.

The Cartersville Express wants Harry W. Grady to lecture in that town.

The proposition made by the city council of Atlanta to erect a capitol building in city hall square as good as the one in Milledgeville seems to meet with general favor among the members of the convention. The site is a commanding one and is one of the finest in the country.

A Michigan man who has recently settled in the lower part of Georgia avers he has never seen such a bee-hive the other day, and the bees immediately settled on him.

Colonel Tom Hardeman, of Macon, is in the city, genial and as hearty as ever.

How many more commencement are we going to have this year?

We haven't seen "Cousin Annie's" matinées recently. Is the little flower still in bloom?

Colonel Williamson says that snakes are large enough to attend picnics.

George King, of the Forsyth Advertiser, has got so that he won't ride a buggy by himself.

The editor of the Fort Valley Mirror is fond of gooseberry jam.

A Merrietta county negro broke his wife's skull with a hoe-blade the other day. He has taken apartments at the jail.

A stroke of lightning killed five head of cattle in Early county recently.

A severe storm passed over Milton county recently.

Simperville wants a railroad.

Rome made the first shipment of pig iron from this country.

A negro boy and a white boy entered a little child under a horse's nest in Hart county recently, and then disturbed the insects. Then the child's grandfather appeared upon the scene with a stick and walloped the bad boys with great roughness.

The young man of the Cartersville Express remarks that short, straw, dwarf counters and low-quartered mint leaf glasses are causing many of our best young men to grow frightened round-shouldered.

A Jesup man has bought the road bed and franchise of the Great Southern railroad, which, when it is built, will connect Jacksonville, Fla., with Milton.

General Tilman H. Malone, of Talbot county, is dead. He was one of the most influential citizens of the county.

A black lead mine has been opened in Floyd county.

The American Republic learns that a clue has been discovered which will lead to the capture of the murderer of the unknown man whose body was found near Andersonville, an account of which was published in the Republican some time since.

Lee county has produced a water-melon that weighs forty-five pounds. Owing to this fact, it sits very heavily on the stomach of the editor of the Amherst Republican.

The Atlanta correspondent of the Atlanta Constitution is using a "P." as the moral breastwork of his name.

Good rains have recently fallen in Sumter, Seneca and Webster counties.

The Talbot Standard thus ironically remarks: "We wonder why some of our daily exchanges or their watchful correspondents have failed to discover in the enterprise of THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION so many colleagues with increasing agricultural material furnished by a special editor, a sister native, or rather a capital officer against Millidgeville."

We fear the warm weather is seriously affecting their watchfulness."

Thus the Butler Herald: "Will the capital be removed? We think not. The convention time has arrived and nothing about it. General Toombs favors Atlanta as the capital. We are indifferent ourselves, but we think Atlanta is the commercial city of the empire state of the south and may worthily claim as the commercial as well as the political capital of Georgia. The convention, beyond all doubt, will give us a good constitution and the people will put the capital wherever they want it."

A son of Mr. J. Reese, of Lincoln county, was drowned recently in a mill pond while swimming across the third time.

Lincoln county will have a camp meeting in August.

A religious revival is going on in Hartwell.

Covington and Conyers are having match games of base ball.

The Conyers paper says the Primitive Baptists of that place excluded from the church Elias Woolley, for pleading usury, and Alfred Smith for taking the honestest.

Mr. Bonapart Macklin, an old and highly esteemed citizen, is dead.

W. C. Hayes, a colored citizen named, has been arrested and lodged in jail in Gwinnett county.

We have a copy of the pamphlet recently published by Mr. R. M. Johnston embodying a review of the material resources of Bainbridge and the county of Decatur. It is exceedingly valuable little work, and should be in the hands of all who take an interest in the development of the state.

Hartwell Sun: Our readers have doubtless heard of Collier's ram, and perhaps it would be to know the name of Collier's son, Tom. Watt Collier, one of our most energetic farmers, has a gun of bees that he claims lays in the shade those of Lieutenant General and Spurre Cunningham. The suns have been laid down the 10th day of May, and they have literally filled the gun and are going ahead making honey underneath the sun.

Sumter Republican: On Back creek, in Shelby county, about eight miles north of Elizaville, the colored people have a debating society where they meet every Saturday night to discuss vital questions. One night last they waded through a very difficult problem. The question was, "whether the most beneficial to the country, the men or the women." The president decided in favor of the latter, from the argument advanced by one of the speakers on the negative, who said, "Doubtless the ladies are the ones that do the work." The president so thought and gave his decision in accordance.

Covington State Judge B. L. David son, has come to Covington from an indefinite asylum at Columbia, S. C., where he has been undergoing treatment for the past six months. The Register fears, however, that he has not entirely recovered his health, as he has been a burden to his family.

More of the Missing Jeweler—A Man

Who Would Like to Have a Fine

Minutes Talk.

There was nothing new from Mr.

The friends with whom the de-utive whose story was published on yesterday had been disposed to doubt the truth of his assertion. And yet others of his shapewards went very far towards discrediting him.

It has now occurred to him, that he is not to be believed.

He has a little talk with Col. J. D. Matthews of Oglethorpe, who has taken a leading position in the convention, and has been foremost in framing the constitution. Col. Matthews said, "I think the session will last possibly thirty days. There is much variety of opinion that there would be among the members of the convention.

Upon what point?"

Upon the household, said he, and the incumbent and the incoming members of the convention.
